OIL FRAUD TRIAL DEATH NEAR

HINT MURDER PLOT AS FOUR DIE IN FIRE AT GLASGOW, KY.

Victims Shot to Death House Was Destroyed.

SHOTGUN FOUND

Father, Mother and Two Children are Killed.

GLASGOW, Ky., Nov. 1. — County officers here today were investigating what they termed a murder plot to wipe out an entire family, following the burning to death of four persons last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nichols and two of their children, Earline, 3, and Win-fall, five months, died when their home was destroyed by fire.

Officers said that the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, upon close examination, showed they had been shot to death before the house was set afire.

Nichols was a wealthy land owner in this section. Three other children at a boarding school, survive the couple.

A shotgun was found near the charred bodies. An empty gas tank was also found near and the smell of gas oil was evident during the early stages of the fire.

Today

A School of Solid Glass. Gossips are Criminals. Very Cheap Wings. Marco Polo in Dollars.

By ARTHUR BRISGANE
[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisgane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

NEWS more important than bootleg crime or oil reserve stealing is this: Berlin will build a great public school made almost entirely of glass.

Up by a frame of steel and concrete, the school walls will be of thick plate glass, admitting sunlight everywhere. Later may come schools of the new quartz glass that admits health-giving actinic rays.

The ages of stone, bronze and iron, may be followed by the age of glass, which will mark man's final exit from the damp, dark cave, to all day sunlight. Houses of glass—that stones will not break, and highways of glass, one above the other, in great cities, will be interesting steps in man's progress.

Berlin's public school of plate glass, to make the day beautiful for teachers and children, will be set in a beautiful park, after the fashion of California, where the most beautiful buildings are great public schools, each in its park grounds.

Our richest city, by the way, allows children to study in the dark, old school buildings, some of them fire traps. It is not that New York City cannot afford public schools finer than those of California or Berlin. The people of New York entrust their public schools to those that apparently do consider our public school system either not important, or not desirable.

Germany's new penal code, as important as the Berlin public school of plate glass, plans to protect society from criminals, instead of merely punishing crime in a hard and fast way, as though for revenge.

And, most gratifying, gossips will be included among the criminal classes. Gossip in the world's long history, has done more real harm than murder. Gossip breaks hearts, and condemns them to endless suffering. That is worse than killing.

The city of Syracuse spends on murdering 17 cents out of every dollar of

216 ARE KILLED BY FIREWORKS, ROTARY TOLD

Leon Rubin, Urging "Safe and Sane" Fourth, Speaks.

CALLS FOR BAN City and State Election Issues are Discussed.

Ratification of the fireworks banning ordinance, approval of the proposed one-mill fire department tax levy and defeat of the proposed chiropractors' bill were advocated by speakers at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A. today.

Leon Rubin, Washington street jeweler, in calling for support of the councilmanic ordinance prohibiting the sale and discharge of fireworks, asserted that 216 persons, 195 of whom were children, were killed and 3,145 injured in the United States last Independence Day.

The corps of speakers, urging approval of the one-mill fire department tax levy, were members of the Chamber of Commerce committee which recently made an investigation into the fire department needs. They included Malcolm Thompson, James S. Hilbert, A. L. White and Albert Froesch. They asserted that fire insurance rates would eventually be decreased in East Liverpool if the levy were approved while a further rate increase is expected if the proposition is rejected.

T. T. Jones, newspaper writer, discussed the chiropractors' bill. A guest at the meeting, invited club members to attend a reception to be given by the three Portage county Rotary clubs at Kent, on November 14, in honor of International President Arthur Sapp, former resident of Ravenna. Other guests were: D. K. Ballard, Pittsburgh; John Grayton, Beaver Falls; Frank Judge, Salineville.

City-wide Drive to Raise Funds to Wipe Out $800 Deficit Will Open Tomorrow.

STUDENTS AID IN DUCAT PUSH

Hurst Squad Supporters Rally for Clash With Quaker City Boys Who Defeated Wellsville Eleven.

High school athletic officials today announced plans for a "Boosters' Day" ticket sale for the annual East Liverpool-Salem football game which will be played next Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field.

A squad of students tomorrow will begin a systematic canvass of the business district with the object of selling sufficient tickets at one dollar each, to bolster the sagging treasury of the school athletic department.

The athletic fund is approximately $800 "in the hole," it was announced, as a result, it is said, of the fact that insufficient money can be collected at the unenclosed field here to meet actual operating expense.

The sale will be continued throughout the week. On Saturday afternoon, the high school band, which scored a decided success at Bellaire Saturday when it paraded the gridiron between halves of the East Liverpool-Bellaire battle, will march through the business district here and to the football field, followed by students and boosters.

The Blue and White has two more home games—Salem next week and Leontia the following, the campaign closing with the Thanksgiving day clash at Wellsville.

With one county championship victory to its credit, the Hurst squad must win the next three to cop the title.

The blaze was discovered by a passing motorist, who called the Central fire department.

Another house owned by Seibert, just across the street, was damaged by fire about a year ago.

Daniel Connor, deputy state fire marshal, Youngstown, arrived here yesterday afternoon to conduct an investigation into the fire which damaged the home of Andre Dunlap, Harvey avenue, East End, early Sunday morning.

FALL-SINCLAIR JURORS HIT IN GRAVE CHARGES BY GOVERNMENT

Mistrial May Follow Alleged Tampering at Washington.

RECESS ORDERED

Judge Siddons Hears Allegations in His Chambers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. —With a federal grand jury investigating charges of jury tampering, Federal Judge Frederic L. Siddons this afternoon adjourned the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial until tomorrow morning to render a decision as to the continuance of the trial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial neared an immature death today following a secret hearing on alleged charges of jury tampering.

Affidavits Support Charges.

Federal Judge Frederic L. Siddons heard the charges in his chambers in the presence of both former Secretary Albert B. Fall, and Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate. After an hour's session, Siddons recessed the trial until 1:30 this afternoon without making any official announcement regarding the evidence.

It was reported that the government's special counsel would demand a mistrial this afternoon.

The charges were supported by affidavits, which Judge Siddons kept in his possession. He declared no one could see them until action was taken in open court.

Indictments Hinted.

The charges were so serious that United States Attorney Peyton Gordon immediately went before a federal grand jury which happened to be in session. It was reported Gordon was asking for indictments in connection with the charges.

This action strengthened reports that the jury had been tampered with. Both defendants were visibly affected by the sensational turn given the oil trial. Neither would comment on the alleged charges.

The penalty for conspiracy to hamper with a jury in the District of Columbia is six years in jail and a fine of $5,000.

When Sinclair was questioned, Martin W. Littleton, his chief attorney, intervened with:

"All I know is in the papers." Littleton referred to an article in

Two front wheels were demolished, while fenders, axle and radiator on the truck, a two-ton Diamond T, were damaged.

McClary Brothers took the damaged truck to their garage in Market street.

The Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections today oiled the machinery for balloting in 105 precincts next Tuesday, when municipal, township and judicial officers and board of education members will be elected and judgment passed upon local, district and state issues.

Chief Deputy J. S. Hilbert and Clerk J. W. Moore announced that everything was in readiness for

15,000 WITNESS WELLSVILLE'S HALLOWE'EN FETE

STREETS JAMMED AS MARDI GRAS SPIRIT REIGNS

Decorated Floats and Masqueraders Win Plaudits.

PRIZES AWARDED

Old-fashioned Celebration Revived by Mayor and Committee.

Favored by probably the best Halloween weather in recent years, the twenty-first revival of Wellsville's community celebration, surpassing all past records, according to officials, in point of beauty, attractiveness and interest, was staged last night before a crowd of merry-makers from practically every point in the district, estimated by association representatives to be near the 15,000 mark.

The night parade and dance were the culminating events of a program that got under way at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon with an athletic carnival at Nicholson Field, featured by Irondale High school football team's 12-0 victory over the Wellsville High reserves.

More than a score of floats, representing business houses, fraternal organizations and individuals competed for prizes in the three divisions as the feature event of the evening.

Team of Ponies Awarded.

A team of ponies and a cedar chest the latter filled with women's wearing apparel, were given away by the association in the public square following the parade. The ponies were awarded to Kate Smith, of East Liverpool, and the chest to Paul Hogenmiller, of Wellsville.

A dance in the city hall auditorium closed the mardi gras program, which was followed by scores of Halloween parties in homes throughout the city.

Competition was keen among float owners for the division of $270 in prize money, and the beauty of the various highly decorated automobiles and trucks made judging difficult. In fact, according to M. K. Duty, chairman of the association committee, the awards in the industrial or business division were still undetermined today.

Fraternal Society Winners.

The fraternal organization winners were announced as follows:

First, Elks, $50; second, Eagles, $25; third, Kiwanis club, $15.

Private cars:

First, Mrs. Mabel Young, $50; second, Charles Platt, $25; third, Clarence West (East Liverpool), $15.

The committee also was working today on the distribution of prizes to the costume wearers, winners being undetermined at noon.

Raymond MacLean carried off honors for the mascot pumpkin, an exhibition at Dales' furniture store, and E. T. McGarvey was second.

Prizes for the largest potato went to a Mrs. Patterson, address unannounced, and second place to Samuel McCulloch.

A comic band, labeled the "Wellsville Central Band," carried off $25 in prize money.

Three Boy Scout troops entered in the parade displayed such a uniformity of perfection that the judges split the $30 prize money three ways.

Mayor Expresses Appreciation.

Mayor W. L. Fogo, who, a month or so ago, suggested the Halloween celebration revival, today publicly expressed his appreciation for the general support accorded the venture and also his thanks to General Chairman M. K. Duty, Secretary George B. Imbrie and all the committee workers for their efforts in making the event an unqualified success.

Chairman Duty, in turn, upon whose shoulders devolved most of the labor of putting over the program, extended thanks to his committee workers and every one who assisted, in behalf of the association.

Results of the afternoon athletic program:

50-yard dash for boys under 8—Warren Alston, first; Robert Newton, second.

50-yard dash for girls under 8—Jane Cook, first; Marjory Householder, second.

The pig race was won by Thomas Saponara who stopped the greased porker in a far corner of the football field and lugged him approximately 55 yards back to the crate.

RAIL TRAINMEN ASK INCREASE

Nineteen Percent Boost is Sought by Brotherhood.

—CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today will file with all railroads west of the Mississippi a request for an increase of approximately $1 per day, or about 19 per cent over the present wage scale, according to announcement of President W. G. Lee.

Lee stated that the request was a renewal of a similar demand made about one year ago which was refused by the roads and went to arbitration. The arbitration board also refused the request, excepting inasmuch as the demand affected yardmen, who were granted a 7 1/2 per cent raise.

The present agreement between the railroads and the trainmen expires March 1, 1928.

IRONDALE WINS GRID CONTEST

Beat Wellsville High Reserves in Halloween Clash.

Outplaying the opposition in tactical football, but unable successfully to overcome superior line weight over a sustained period, Wellsville High School Reserves bowed to Irondale High school yesterday afternoon at Nicholson Field, 12-0, in the feature event of the Halloween athletic program.

The visitors shaved over a touchdown in the first quarter of play, employing straight football, but from then on until the closing minutes were kept away from the Orange goal line. With but a few minutes of the final quarter remaining, Ray, his Irondale guard, broke through Wellsville's defense to block a punt which he scooped up and ran 30 yards for a touchdown.

The Orange Reserves, greatly outweighed, played smart football, nevertheless. The punt-running of both teams, especially, was outstanding. Safety men ran back opposition kicks like major leaguers. The Orange, outscored, was not outmanned, however, and played gamely all the way.

The lineup:

Wellsville: Johnson, J. E.; Weekley, J. E.; Ferguson, J. T.; Danfee, James; L. G.; Satev, Wardeski, C.; Nelson, Ray; R. G.; Summers, Lowery, R. T.; Householder, Standley, R. 'NAKED TRUTH' COMING HERE

Strand Theatre Will Present Screen Offering, "T. N. T."

"T. N. T." otherwise known as "The Naked Truth" film will have an opportunity to explode the old ideas into oblivion and present bare facts in a modern way at the Strand the coming week, where it will show exclusively to women only, first running men and children under 16 years of age. In addition to "The Naked Truth" there will be shown to the women special reels made exclusively for women audiences.

"The Naked Truth" was recently barred by Mayor Nichols from its showing in Boston, claiming that it was unfit for public exhibition. However, the film was then shown to Mayor Bauer of Lynn, Mass., who greatly differed with the Boston mayor and claimed that a film such as "The Naked Truth" would be of beneficial value to any community, and had granted permission to the management of the Auditorium in Lynn, to show the film, where it ran for four weeks, showing to tremendous crowds.

This picture had considerable controversy in Chicago, at which time it received a restraining order from the circuit court against the censor board from interfering with its presentation there. It is said that it is unusually frank, to the point, and shows actual scenes, not hesitating in presenting the bare facts as they are. It has the support of the welfare organizations, women's clubs as well as the clergy in most of the large cities where it has recently been shown.

The story of mistis and parents who neglected to impart the mysteries of life to their children at the proper time and its consequences is one that strikes home to the average theatre-goer in that it contains a tale woven into the average domestic life. Helene Chadwick and Jack Mulhall play the leads. On account of the delicate subject and scenes portrayed, at no time will both audiences be admitted to see "T. N. T." (The Naked Truth). When the men are admitted, they will have extra special seats also, which are not shown to the women audiences.

HALLANAN RAPS LEGAL OFFICER

State Senator Assails
Attorney General on Taxation Ruling.

Charging that the attorney general's opinion that the proposed tax on utilities was unconstitutional would bring about the defeat of plans to complete state capitol, Senator W. Hallanan, legislative committee member and capitol advocate, issued a statement yesterday referring to that made public recently by Attorney General H. B. Lee.

He said "it appears quite evident that seven years after the burning of the old capitol the state will have no definite program toward completing the main capitol building and we will probably witness the realization of another 'political juggernaut' comparable to the Virginia debt problem."

Earlier in the statement the senator said: "In any event, I am willing to consider that the cloud thrown over the proposed excise tax on public utilities by the attorney general's opinion will be ample ground for the defeat of the plan to complete the state capitol."

Pointing out that his personal opinion had been for a direct tax for capitol completion and that he had been an opponent of increasing insurance taxes, Senator Hallanan declared that there was such general opposition to the direct tax that some compromise was necessary to make any progress. The statement also took the attorney general to task again for making public his opinion on the constitutionality of the public utilities tax without consulting the committee.

Governor Gore announced yesterday that M. S. White, president of the senate had proposed November 9 as date for the joint legislative committee to meet to receive the utilities and insurance tax bills and that this date would be set if V. B. Johnson, speaker of the house found it acceptable.

equivalent of a Roman naval war, is visualized in 15 minutes packed with thrills. Just a few of the incidents:

Evolutions of two fleets aggregating 100 vessels. Chaining of the doomed slaves in the Roman flagship, poignantly contrasted with the escape of unshackled Ben-Hur. Ramming and boarding of the Roman vessels. Onslaught of the pirate Golthar and his men, bearing aloft on their pikes the heads of slaughtered Romans. The Romans' stout defense by Greek fire, ballistics, javelins, spears, pikes and ultimately the very pins and blocks of the ship. The firing of the flagship, the fate of the doomed oarsmen, the leaps of hundreds of the badly soiled fighters into the sea, the rescue of the commander-in-chief by the sole slave that escaped, the parade of the Romans of their general victory, the thrilling salutation to the returned commander, Arrius, who orders won the action though his individual ship went down.

Fred Niblo took acres of land and built upon it a race course and a great Antioch circus for the sole purpose of filming the chariot race sequence in the Lew Wallace story. This construction was begun near Culver City in July and not completed until October. The great Circus Maximus extended 1,500 feet along the sides of the course and towered 150 feet above it. Huge sculptured gladiators, 35 feet high and each weighing several tons, marked the ends of the spina, insula or island around which the track goes. Twelve drivers with their 12 teams of four horses each were in rehearsal for nearly a month before the great day of the race which was characterized by thrills and hair-breadth escapes.

The sixth lap was the most exciting. Mickey Millerick, a famous horseman, driving the Byzantine team or south turn and just behind the Roman team. In doing so he crowded the Greek, Sidiian, Corinthian and Athenian teams far wide. The first went down and soon the others piled on top of him. There were actual shrieks from the throngs and it seemed that some one must be hurt, perhaps fatally.

Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) had luckily gone wide and escaped the wreck. He went on to get even at the beginning of the seventh and last lap, and then the grand incident of the story was enacted. Messala's wheel was torn off and he was smashed beneath his chariot and team. Ben-Hur went on to win easily amid the cheers of the vast crowd.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1927.

Salvation Army Seeks $5,000

The Salvation Army, determined to reach the $10,000 goal in the 1927-28 home service budget campaign, today resumed a canvass in the East Liverpool district in hopes of raising approximately $5,000 to meet the deficit reported at the end of 10 hours' solicitation last Tuesday.

Lack of workers handicapped the first canvass, with the result that scores of prospective contributors were not approached by the team members. It is the aim of the campaigners to call upon business and professional men as well as persons in the homes.

Field Major Joseph Hughes, in charge of the East Liverpool citadel, and his co-workers have renewed their appeal for the co-operation of the district people in their humanitarian movement. With the exception of a small percentage for administration purposes, all contributions are to be expended in relief activities.

The Salvation Army's interest in unfortunates needs no encomiums. The organization provides food, clothing and fuel and even pays rent for the poor. And its efforts are not confined to the Christmas season, when its work comes to the attention of the public, but covers the entire year.

The cause is worthy and should have the support of every man, woman and child who can afford to contribute.

The Year's Business

The National Association of Manufacturers, taking an annual survey of the nation's business, brings forth reassuring testimony. The situation is better than most business men would have supposed. And this is not making the best of a bad situation, either. Business, by the voluntary statements of the members of the organized industry of the country, is positively good.

The answers received from manufacturers in every line of activity, in every section, show that current trade in general is "excellent to good to fair," the percentage of "excellent" business being only a little lower than it was in the fall of last year.

The outlook for winter business is generally optimistic, being likewise only a little below the outlook a year ago.

There has been a small net decrease in employment, with more labor available, but there are more wage increases than decreases—a fact which speaks eloquently for the general prosperity of the nation.

The report says that production has been maintained in "practically unchanged volume since last fall," though with a slight decrease in quantities and a drop in sales values.

There is industrial peace almost universally—labor troubles are negligible.

In short, it appears that 1927 has fallen very slightly behind 1926. And 1926, be it remembered, was a very good year indeed.

As for the present and immediate future: Ninety-one per cent of the replies pronounce present trade "favorable"—that is, "fair," "good" or "excellent"—and more than 92 per cent pronounce the prospects for winter trade favorable.

Decorated Street Cars

Decorated street cars are reported as the latest thing in Houston, Texas. All the trolley cars used to be one monotonous shade. Then somebody had a bright idea. Paint was bought and the cars are being decorated. Now a street car in Houston is almost literally a moving picture.

One car, it is said, carries the owl emblem of the Rice Institute football team. Another is decorated with the bulldog insignia of one of the high schools. Another bears a painting of the Houston skyline.

Cars on certain routes are painted certain colors. They come in white, green, red, purple and possibly other rainbow tints.

Both the bright colors and the pictures make it easier for patrons to tell when the car they want is coming, without straining to read the printed signs on the front. And the gay cars must add greatly to the cheeriness of the scene.

There's a danger, though. Won't some enterprising billboard advertiser want to paint ads all over the cars?

The Biggest Airplane

There is now being assembled in Suffolk, England, according to London dispatches, the largest airplane ever built. It is expected to carry five tons of bombs or 40 men, and will weigh 25 tons.

The wing-spread is 150 feet, which is about the length of an average American building lot. The monster stands 35 feet above the ground, which is higher than an ordinary two-story house.

Will it fly? The engineers think so, but nobody will know until it is tried.

The structural design may be all right and yet the human factor may fail—the thing may be too hard to handle safely. It should be sturdier in the air, once up, than smaller planes, but there will be peril in taking off and landing so huge a craft. We are familiar with the elaborate precautions that must be taken with giant steamships in docking; yet they may be moved slowly, and the nature of an airplane forbids slowness. The bigger and heavier the flying machine, the harder it will fall—if it falls.

Yet this experiment may succeed. And what then? Is there any limit to the possible size of an airplane? Shall we have them eventually roaring over our heads as big as winged and engined churches?

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang—

By Fontaine Fox

MR. BANG FAILS TO MAKE GOOD HIS THREAT TO THROW THE SPINACH OUT THE WINDOW THE NEXT TIME THERE WAS SAND IN IT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—New York is a city that puts high premium on feminine beauty. And nowhere is beauty so neglected when it begins to tarnish. That is why so many beauty parlors flourish. Women fight here as they would a plague. And you can scarcely blame them.

Hundreds of otherwise sensible men are thrilled to the marrow following some dazzling creature to a cafe table just to see admiring glances of strangers they will never know. Show girls and mannequins have received as much as $200 a night—just to ornament a dinner table.

One of the great annoyances of beauty show producers is to dodge vultures. Gentlemen who employ every sort of device and deception to meet reigning ladies of the ensemble. As a general thing, these men are flattered merely to be seen with a noted beauty.

And satisfied to be, as Broadway puts it, "doorstepped" when they take them home. Beauty requires little cultural background here to be courted. So true is this that "the beautiful and dumb" are envied by many sisters reared in the hothouse atmosphere of boarding schools who remain wall flowers.

That now ancient story actually had its inception in the tower of the Ritz where one of the most beautiful red haired show girls of that day awaited her escort to dinner. She wore the latest Parisian creation and every eye was upon her.

"You look," said a rushing acquaintance, "like a bit of rare old Venetian tapestry." Eyeing her coldly, the beauty sniffed: "You don't look so darn well yourself." And that well known line, "I seen you when you done it," was the kitchen remark of a dumb Doris to a millionaire banker she later married.

Clothes, beauty and youthfulness form a triple combination that is unbeatable for soft living in a hard-boiled town. But the finish when they begin to fade is about the most tragic of all finishes for those who live dangerously.

And masculine beauty is not sneezed at in the metropolis. There are any number of suave, handsome men whose lives seem bound to luxury yet without visible means of support. You see them year after year at the smartest places, the lives of the party and studiously interested in looking out the window when the check arrives.

Professional feminine beauties are

And yet when one thinks of famous Broadway beauties there is always a memory of Nan Patterson, Evelyn Thaw, and Dot King, who found only sorrow in the luxurious glitter and horror.

It is said Dot King, a few nights before she was found garroted in her apartment, told a friend: "Broadway has given me only flowers, a few jewels and a sincere wish I had never left home."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

How Flexible Tariff Works.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The imposition of tariff duties on imports has been a bugbear of American politics since the very beginning of the nation. Tariff has always been the major issue between the two great contending parties. Even before the Constitution solidified the Union, sovereign states erected tariffs against each other. New York and New Jersey came near to war over the imposition of tariffs on goods from one state coming into the other.

And now that we have a scientifically designed Tariff Commission, intended by its originators to smooth out everything that body has proved a very hotbed of dissension. The present tariff bill, the Fordney-McCumber measure, has been in effect a little more than five years. The average length of life of tariff measures has been six and a half years. The country is about due for a fresh revision and agitation already has started.

The principal bone of contention under the present tariff bill takes the form of the flexible tariff provisions, administered by the tariff commission with the approval of the president.

It was recognized when the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was enacted into law that the ward had upset industrial and trade conditions throughout the world and that no one could be sure what changes might take place in competitive conditions throughout the world a month, a year, or perhaps five years after the signing of the bill. So the flexible tariff provision was added. Under that provision the president, on recommendation of the United States tariff commission, may order tariffs raised or lowered a maximum of fifty per cent.

The commission makes general investigations of the competitive situation as between this and foreign countries and forwards recommendations on the basis of the results.

A Great Trouble Maker. Although President Harding declared that the flexible provisions of the bill constituted the greatest advance in the science of tariff-making in a century, at the time he signed the measure, experience has shown that the provision has proved probably the greatest trouble maker.

Mr. Harding never has an opportunity to act on any application of an American producer for a higher tariff against a foreign country before his death. The first change was made by President Coolidge on March 7, 1924, when he increased by 40 per cent the duty on wheat and by 33.3 per cent the duty on wheat flour and reduced by 50 per cent the duty on millfeeds. This was an intricate case. It will be seen, because while the commission recommended and the president approved increases on what flour he reduced the duty on millfeeds which are chiefly made from the husks of the wheat kernel. This shows the actual flexibility of the tariff when even different parts of the same plant may be given different tariff rates.

Nineteen applications for changes in tariff rates under this provision have been approved since the enactment of the flexible provision. In fifteen cases the adjustments have been upward and in only four cases downward.

The whole theory of a tariff, of course, is to keep out or admit on a parity only, such products as are made in the United States, and to admit at rates to provide revenue only such goods as are not produced in the United States in sufficient abundance, together with luxury goods which, it is argued, should pay a duty because, presumably, persons who can afford luxuries can afford to add to the revenues of the nation.

This has been the straight Republican party tariff theory while the Democratic party has been largely a free trade party. A change in the Democratic theory of tariff for revenue only has been taking place in the last few years, however, through the rapidly increasing spread of industry in the South, the stronghold of Democrats. Formerly, the South was almost wholly an agricultural region. It exported its crops in great volume but did practically no manufacturing. It wanted low tariff rates because it was believed that lower prices could be obtained were the American industries in the North not protected by a tariff wall.

But Louisiana favored a protective tariff because Cuban sugar competed with its product. Then the steel industry rose in Alabama and protection was felt to be necessary against English, French, Belgian and German steel. Perhaps the most notable change has been brought about by the wholesale transfer of the textile industry of New England to North and South Carolina. These developments have gone far to modify the free trade attitude of the Old South.

The flexible tariff provision has a further measure of elasticity in extreme cases. Ordinarily, the foreign market price is taken as the basis of assessment of duty. But when even a fifty per cent increase in the regular tariff does not prevent foreign-made goods from coming in and underselling American-made goods, the president has authority to substitute the American selling price of American-made goods as the basis for assessment of duty.

So far the tariff commission has devoted much of its time to investigations and reports upon relative unimportant products having only a limited demand here. The elaborate investigations made into the comparative costs of production and selling prices, here and abroad, of bob-white quail, paint brush handles, and wall pockets have been frequently cited as the type of work on which the commission spends its time, while great commodities of wide use such as steel, brick, wool, and such fundamental products go unstudied.

The president need not approve the tariff commission's recommendations and if he does not, no change in the tariff is made. In two cases involving recommendations by the commission for increases in the duty on cotton warm knit fabric and cotton warp knit gloves, the president declined to approve such action, saying he found no need for any alteration in existing rates. In two other cases—sugar and linseed oil—in which the commission recommended reductions in the tariff the president again refused to approve any change.

Majority and minority reports are filed by members of the body and not infrequently their views are far apart. The president must study both sides, and, it will be seen, in four cases—two for increases and two for reductions—he agreed with the minority.

DIX SCORES ANOTHER HIT

"Shanghai Bound" Opens Run at Ceramic Theatre.

That motion picture producers know no geographical barriers was proven last night on the screen of the Ceramic theatre, when Richard Dix opened a three-day engagement in the exciting, vividly colorful film "Shanghai Bound." The locale is China, and the Yangtze river, where the action takes place, is realistic enough to please the most captious critic.

Dix has a great vehicle in "Shanghai Bound." This ace of Paramount stars has increased his popularity immensely recently with such splendid pictures as "The Quarterback," "Knockout Reilly" and "Man Power," but in "Shanghai Bound," he even betters them. The unusual background, stirring action and timeliness of theme are sufficient reasons why this is a picture not to be missed.

Dix has the role of Jim Bucklin, captain of a Yangtze boat. Up the river from Shanghai, he finds a party of American tourists, who are unaware that food riots and bloodshed are about to break out. How he takes them on his ship, impresses them as substitutes for a deserted crew and falls in love with the girl in a dangerous trip through the river pirates' Park Way are Pittsburgh visitors today.

Dr. D. J. Smally has returned to his local office, after a three months' stay in Steubenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Ferguson of Whitacre apartments, Wellsville, announce the birth of a daughter in the City Hospital on October 30.

sampans, furnishes the skeleton of the story. It is ideal material for two-fisted Dix and he gives a great performance.

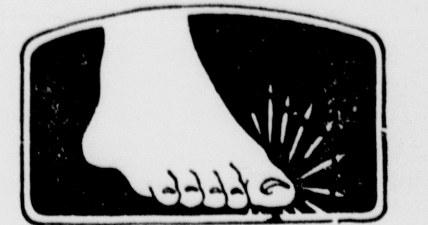

Supporting him is an excellent cast, headed by Mary Brian, who has played in several of his recent pictures. As the haughty American society girl who finally succumbs to her love for the ship captain, she has probably the best role of her career. Other members of the cast are good and an interesting feature is the fact that more than 150 Chinese appear in the production.

Luther Reed has directed this picture with meticulous attention to detail and he has contrived to present what seems to be a wholly authentic picture of modern China. The story is by Edward S. (Tex) O'Reilly, erstwhile drillmaster in the Chinese Imperial Army. It's evident that he knows China.

Of 2,000,000 lepers now in the world, one-fourth are in China, and nearly as many are in India, according to W. J. Eddy, secretary in Australia for the Mission of Lepers.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so loosens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

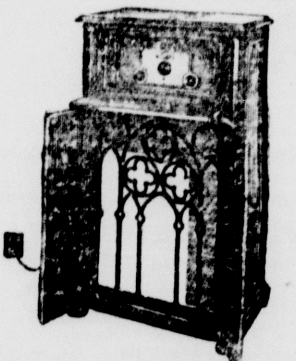

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Fireworks Toll

Willie, and John Cochran, of Lakota City.

Rubin Cites Toll.

Rubin said:

"On May 5, 1927, an ordinance was passed by the East Liverpool city council, prohibiting the sale and discharge of fireworks within the corporate limits.

"A month later some of our citizens, who are interested in the sale of fireworks presented a referendum petition, thus making it necessary to present the following facts to our voters:

"On July 4, 1927, 216 persons were killed and 3,145 were injured by fireworks as America celebrated.

"Just think, out of the 216 killed, 195 were children, who if it had not been for their parents, guardians or friends who permitted them to use the deadly playthings would be living today. When the Day of Reckoning comes and those who advocate the use of fireworks for no other reason than personal gain are called, they will certainly have a lot to answer for.

"Allow me to give you a few amazing figures. St. Louis alone reported 553 killed and injured; New York, 228; Chicago reported scores dead and hundreds injured. Cleveland suburbs reported 10 injured. Practically every place in the union reported heavy toll. In East Liverpool two children were burned from fireworks.

"A complete survey shows that the number of deaths and injuries caused by fireworks ranks third among those caused by accidents in our country.

"Our national capital and Cleveland, two cities in which the sale and discharge of fireworks is prohibited by city ordinance, reported no casualties.

"If you are in favor of eliminating the deadly weapon and general nuisance—vote YES on the ordinance No. 1037 known as the fireworks ordinance."

Open Budget Drive

Army makes no apology in going before our people and asking for its budget as the Army administration has proved its fitness to handle the "billion dollar" given them.

"The Army has been doing this work successfully as every city and township administration for 25 years testifies.

"Owing to the pressure of business and other conditions the late drive was not concluded. It is suggested on responsible advice, that a 'follow-up' be started on Tuesday, Nov. 1, in order that prospective givers may have an opportunity to take part. Ten teams of local workers have been organized to do this.

"Co-operation with the present city administration and the township trustees gives proof of the urgency of the needs, and the compensation for your gifts will be seen in reconstructed lives, rejuvenated humanity, happier homes, carefree children and comfort for the aged and infirm. Calls are continually coming to us for food, coal, clothing, medicine, rents and shelter.

"We thank all who have contributed to the drive, and are confident that the next two weeks will see the budget pledged or given."

income—and old-fashioned finance, warring its head, says "extravagance." Buying new automobiles takes ten and a quarter cents, gasoline three and a half cents, accessories three cents. And that's the best investment of 17 cents on the dollar that Syracuse could make.

If a hoptoad could buy wings for 17 cents on his dollar and fly, instead of painfully hopping in the dust, he'd be a fool not to spend the 17 cents. Automobile is flying. Get a car if you have not got one, or a better car if you can afford it.

The New York Times dwells on the financial achievements of A. P. Giannini, head of the Bank of Italy and allied corporations, with five hundred millions in capital, and shares with a market value exceeding a billion dollars.

Mr. Giannini, says the Times, gained his prestige in California in the San Francisco fire. While the fire was burning, he hauled the cash from the vaults of his burning bank, down the peninsula, where he buried it in his garden. Then he returned to San Francisco, with the fire still smoldering, bringing his cash back with him, put out a Bank of Italy sign on his brother's house, and began lending money to clients apparently ruined by the fire. He knew that a mere fire cannot destroy the responsibility of a real man.

Seasonable Recipes

By MARY BROWN-LEWERS

There never was a season when the markets were more abundantly supplied with good vegetables and fruits in their prime—the Harvest Season. In the springtime, the fresh fruits and vegetables seem so delicious, but in real flavor and food value, they cannot compare with those of maturity, as the celery, parsnips, apples, cranberries.

It is a good time to begin trying out these foods in preparation for your holiday menu. A general rule for vegetable cookery is to put to cook in freshly boiled boiling water, salt at the end of 10 minutes. Cook all mildly flavored vegetables in covered vessels. Cook tender but do not over-cook.

Try the following recipes:

Escalloped Celery.
Make a thin white sauce by rubbing 1 tablespoon flour into 1 tablespoon shortening, add 1 cup and stir until cooked smoothly. Salt and pepper to taste. Line a casserole with bread crumbs, cover with a layer of raw celery cut into 1/4 inch slices, then white sauce to cover. Repeat, alternating the bread crumbs and celery with the white sauce until the dish is full.

Finish with bread crumbs, dot liberally with butter, cover and bake at 300° or in a slow oven until the celery can be pierced with a toothpick. It is good to brown the bread crumbs or to use crushed corn flakes or shredded wheat, instead.

Breaded Parsnips.
Six medium size parsnips, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and browned bread crumbs. Scrub and scrape the parsnips. Cut in half lengthwise. Cover with boiling water to which the lemon juice has been added with 3 teaspoons of salt. When tender, lift out and drain carefully, brush over with the beaten egg, roll in the bread crumbs and place on a greased baking sheet in a hot oven and brown quickly. Sprinkle with the parsley. Dish by placing flat on a platter, alternating heads and tails. Pour over a butter sauce of 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour stirred in smoothly, gradually add half a cup of milk, 1/2 cup cream, stir until boiling then add 1 teaspoon lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste.

Sweet Potatoes with Raisins.
Boil sweet potatoes until done, then

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

CHAPTER XLVII.

It always made Sally utterly miserable to know that her mother was unhappy about anything.

She felt toward Mrs. Jerome as a doll that was sickly and bad tempered and hard to please. She pampered her and petted her, and let her have her own way whenever she could.

Her big, shadowy eyes were full of trouble now as she turned them upon her mother's discontented face.

"I thought you liked being here with Aunt Em, dear," she said, remembering how determined her mother had been about coming there.

Mrs. Jerome sighed and shook her head. "I don't," she answered. "Your Aunt makes me get up so early in the morning, and yesterday when she asked me to shell two bushels of green peas I just didn't know how I was going to do it—the smell of peas has always made me terribly sick to my stomach. I want to go back to my town home."

Sally's face, as she stopped the car and began to unload it, was very sober. "Well, Mommie," she said slowly and quietly, "I'll take another look somewhere just as soon as I can. But I can't afford it right now."

"Of course you can afford it! The way you and your aunt are making money now!" she snapped, heavily, lowering her great body from the car. "Millie said this morning that you must be making small fortune."

"We aren't," Sally was telling the truth. They were making more money than they had, but their expenses were heavier, too.

"Then how could you afford that costume you've got there?" her mother wanted to know, her doubting eyes on the brown paper bundle that was Sally's new dancing dress.

"Well, I couldn't, as I told you," Sally said bluntly. "But I had to have it. . . . That dance seems to help our business, somehow or other, and the old costume was so shabby."

"I don't believe anybody wants to see you dance," Mrs. Jerome cut in. "I think the business is picking up because it's summer time, and that's why you have more people out here. Who cares about seeing a girl shake her shoulders and her feet all around a room, anyway?"

Sally might have reminded her that a great many people had wanted to see girls dance. Girls like Irene Casle and Gilda Gray and the Duncan sisters, and Marilyn Miller had made more fortunes out of "shaking their shoulders and their feet."

But she did not. She set her lips and went on taking bags of lettuce-heads and baskets of fresh-killed chicken out of the back of the car.

Then she followed her mother silently into the house.

It began to dawn upon Sally that not only Mrs. Jerome, but the whole family thought that she and Aunt Emily were making a great deal of money.

Beau and Mabel began to talk about trading in their shabby little flame-colored roadster for a new car. "Sally can lend us some money and we can pay her back so much a week," Beau remarked easily one Sunday morning when they were all having breakfast together on the back porch.

Sally stared at him, wide-eyed with astonishment. "Lend you the money for a car?" she cried. "Ye gods, Beau, I'm still paying for that new blue costume of mine. I can't lend you any money."

Mabel giggled sharply. "People always get tight when they start making money!" she said. "The only generous people in the world are the people who can't afford to be generous."

Sally flushed. "I hope I won't be tight and stingy when I do start making money," she replied evenly. "But I'm not making any just now. Please believe me. Thirty dollars a week isn't a fortune, you know."

Millie seemed to make the same mistake.

She took to bringing Davy Davidson home with her two or three nights a week, and serving him with one of the $1.50 chicken dinners as nonchalantly as if it had been a hamburger sandwich.

"We aren't in this business for our health, Millie," Aunt Em caught her up sharply one night after Davidson had gone. "And you'll have to pay for this man's dinners, or else tell him so, if he comes any more."

Millie looked daggers at her. "My goodness, Aunt Em, to begrudge a man the little bit of food that he eats here, when you're making all the money you are!" she said scornfully. "I should think you'd be glad to have him here—to help fill up your dining room and make it look as if it were the most popular place around here."

Aunt Em laughed without mirth. "He comes here to watch Sally, anyway," she remarked. "I've kept my eye on that gentleman and I know."

"Pooh!" Millie was just as scornful as she was, and Sally backed her up in her scorn.

"You're all wrong, Aunt Em!" she declared hotly. "Davidson and Millie have been great friends for years. I scarcely know him."

But there came a night when Aunt Emily's suspicion was proved a well-founded one.

It was a warm, starry night late in June, and the House by the Side of the Road had done a record-breaking business.

At half past twelve Sally was counting over the money they had taken in when the front door opened and Millie and Davidson walked in.

They had spent the evening dancing at "The Lark," for Millie was getting even with Aunt Emily by refusing to step inside of the restaurant at home for a meal.

"Jinny, but those dancers down at 'The Lark' were wonderful!" she trilled tonight, in a voice loud enough to reach the ears of Aunt Emily, who had come upstairs.

"Not half so good as Sally," Davidson added solemnly. His gray eyes were on Sally as she bent over the little table, sorting bills and quarters and half dollars.

She could feel them passing over her face, her neck and breast, and settling on the toes of her blue-and-silver slippers.

"Some feet, Sally," he said. "They sure do know how to shake a wicked measure. And your shoulders aren't so slow."

Sally flashed her brilliant smile at him, and went on counting. "Thirty-four—thirty-five—thirty-six—"

"Plenty of money you're taking in, aren't you?" asked Davidson.

It was Millie who answered him. "I'm going to quit my job if this keeps up," she giggled. "And go into the restaurant business myself. I'm getting awfully sick of the job I've got, anyway."

Sally stopped counting and glanced up at her sharply, questioning.

"You are?" she exclaimed. "Sick of working for John Nye?"

For the thousandth time she wondered how little Millie could fall to be hopelessly, madly, deeply in love with John Nye. How she could waste a minute on a man like Davidson when she was in close daily contact with the good-looking and altogether fascinating head of the "John Nye Real Estate Company."

Millie nodded, her shallow blue eyes shining under the pink brim of her hat. She looked coyly up at Davy Davidson.

"Maybe Davy will get me a place in the office where he's working now," she began, and then stopped short. For Davidson's cold gray eyes were still fixed on Sally, and there was no hint of coldness in them now.

They were filled with unmistakable ardor and admiration.

"Sally," he said, quite as if no other person but himself and Sally were there in the wide, bright hall, "you certainly are a pipkin!"

"What do you mean?" asked Sally, innocently. "Because I dance, or because I wait on table here, or what?"

She went on counting money. She did not expect Davidson to answer her idle, indifferent questions.

He didn't, either. For before he had time to think of an answer Millie had raised her voice in anger and complaint.

"Well, I like your brass, Mr. Brassington," she blazed out at him. "If you're so crazy about Sally, why do you bother with me? You'd better face about and stir up the dust outside, I'm saying! Shut the door from this other side, and don't come back! Good night!"

And with a single backward glance she was up the stairs and out of sight.

The sound of her sharp little heels sounded on the floor above as she went back and forth in her room, preparing for the night.

Sally, silent with confusion, finished counting her money before she looked up at Davidson.

He was standing just as he had been standing three minutes before, smiling down at her. Evidently Millie's jealous outburst had not disturbed him any more than her command to leave the house had caused him to go.

"Well," he said in an undertone to Sally, "what have you to say about that?"

"I'll say this: Good night!" replied Sally, getting up from her chair with her money in her hands.

She turned toward the little office at the end of the hall, where Aunt Em had a tiny wall safe for her money.

She did not know that Davidson had followed her there, until she had deposited the money in the little strongbox and closed it.

Then as she turned to go back to the hall, she came face to face with him. He was standing close behind her—so close that when she turned she touched him with one of the dusky white shoulders that curved above the soft blue silk of her dancing dress.

He laid one of his hands on it, covering it.

Attorney General Turner Gives Ruling To County Coroners

COLUMBUS, O.—County coroners have no authority to conduct post-mortem examinations in their official capacity at the instance of the friends, or relatives, of a deceased person, and, therefore, cannot, as coroner, accept fees from the friends, or relatives, of a deceased person for conducting such examinations. This ruling was given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner to officials of the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public officers.

"There is nothing in the law to prevent the person occupying the position of coroner from performing an autopsy in his private capacity and receiving pay therefor, which he may retain, providing he complies with the laws and rules of the board of health respecting the disinterment of human bodies, and he in no wise makes use of his official powers as coroner," Turner ruled.

Princeton Faces First Big Test In Clash With Ohio State

PRECEDES GRID EPIC WITH POWERFUL ELIS

Tigers, Easing Along Against Mediocre Opposition all Season, Prepares for Real Tilt With Enigmatic Buckeyes.

By Malcolm Roy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Serious business is ahead for the Princeton Tiger. Under the old order of things the Princetonians would be entertaining Harvard at the Palmer stadium this week end and the Tiger would be licking his chops in gleeful anticipation, but the big three is no more and instead of the Crimson eleven, the Tiger will tackle the enigmatic Ohio State team at old Nassau. And Ohio State presents the big question mark in an otherwise successful Princeton season to date.

On past records Princeton appears to be headed logically and inevitably toward a game with Yale which promises to be an epic not only in the long history between these two but also in the history of football for this particular season. Just as the Army and Navy drew apart last year and in game after game gave indubitable evidence that their big final battle would be the climatic game of the season, so Yale and Princeton have gone their separate ways this year, demonstrating beyond all peradventure of doubt that they are just about the best of the lot if not the very best, and that when they meet in the bowl on November 12 considerable more than their ancient rivalry will be at issue.

The Villain Enters. This is where Ohio State steps into Princeton's side of the picture. Apart from the game with Cornell a week ago in which the Tigers gave a superb exhibition of versatile offensive strength and of powerful defensive strategy, Princeton had been face to face with no really high class opposition this season.

Ohio State has everything to gain and nothing to lose against Princeton, has been through a series of rough and tumble battles with Michigan, Northwestern and Chicago, and although considerably scarred and torn, has its fighting spirit intact and a determination to redeem itself in the eyes of the football world at the expense of the Tiger.

After it had been defeated by Michigan by the overwhelming margin of three touchdowns, following its setback at the hands of Northwestern, Ohio State appeared to be headed down and going fast. But the team found itself against Chicago and handed the Midway eleven its first defeat in a conference game this season. Having thus re-established itself, Ohio State is primed for Princeton.

They've Had It Easy. The Tigers have had no such opposition through the run of the season as that through which Yale has battled its way to the top and it needs the Ohio State fight. The power is admittedly in this Princeton team but it needs the fire of another hard bat-

Chester High Opens Home Card Saturday

Wilde's Eleven Slated for Scuffle With Strong Weirton Squad; Follansbee and New Cumberland Also Billed.

COACH RAY WILDE'S Chester high school eleven will play its first home game of the season on Saturday afternoon at Smith field, Chester tackling one of the toughest opponents of a dwindling schedule that promises no respite in a series of three engagements.

Weirton has won four out of five games during the campaign up to date. The steel town aggregation trounced Burgetstown by a count of 19-0, beat Cadiz, 6-0; Benwood Union, 6-0; New Cumberland, 44-0, and sustained their only defeat of the season at the hands of Mingo Junction, 6 to 0.

Chester beat Wellsville in the opening game of the season by a score of 12 to 6, but Mingo turned in a 27-6 victory over the Orange, indicating that Weirton, in its 6-0 loss to the Mingoans, must have played considerable football at that.

On the following Saturday Follansbee will appear at Chester and the Saturday prior to Thanksgiving will bring New Cumberland up the river.

NORTHWEST FOES BATTLE FOR TITLE

BOWLING GREEN, O., Nov. 1.—Defiance and Toledo, both undefeated in the Northwest Ohio conference, were grooming their football teams this week for what is regarded as one of the most important games of the conference Saturday, when the two meet at Toledo.

Defiance, with two victories within the loop, is a favorite to win. Toledo's one victory of Bluffton in the conference was not so impressive, and the Rockets will have to play exceptional football to down the Yellow Jackets.

The two "cellar teams," Bluffton and Findlay, are to play at Bluffton on Saturday. Each has lost two games, but Bluffton is slightly favored.

Bowling Green, the other conference eleven, rests this week-end, after Saturday's victory over Findlay, which incidentally uncovered a new Bowling Green star, Fullback Carroll, who carried the ball 25 times in Saturday's game, from scrimmage, for an average gain of 5 yards.

Enjoy Breathing Spell. MADISON, Wis., Nov. 1.—Wisconsin will have a breathing spell from conference competition this week-end in a game against Grinnell. Coach Thistlethwaite is working on his reserves, seeking to develop new power to back up his regular.

M'Tigue 6 to 5 Favorite to Beat Walker

Middleweight Rivals Resume Feud Tonight.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight boxing champion, is a 6 to 5 favorite to beat Mickey Walker, middleweight title holder, in their ten-round battle at the Coliseum tonight.

It is the renewal of an old feud with Walker and McTigue, both genuine Irishmen. They fought 12 rounds in 1925 with the result that no one was quite sure who won.

Walker will weigh around 155 pounds and McTigue 170 pounds. There will be no title at stake. The middleweight champion is 26 years old and McTigue is 33.

Walker, who once held the welterweight title, is rapidly outgrowing the middleweight division, just as he outgrew the welter. He hopes to defeat McTigue and then challenge Loughran or Slattery, both of whom claim the light heavyweight crown.

Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, believes Mickey is destined to wind up in the heavyweight class. If he succeeds in his plan to capture the light heavyweight crown, Kearns says, Walker will then invade the ranks of the top notchers.

Robaux Sazore, the negro light heavyweight from Cuba who has an enviable record of knockouts, will clash with Benny Ross of Buffalo, N. Y., in the ten-round semi-windup tonight.

Kernan started in his first regular game.

Detroit Pug Takes 'K.O.' in 1-Round Farce

Tom Sayres' Purse Declared Forfeited by Commission.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Tom Sayers, of Detroit, who was scheduled to trade blows with George Godfrey, colored heavyweight fighter, at the arena here last night, ceased activities sixty seconds after the beginning of the first round.

The doughty warrior from the West exchanged a few light taps with his negro opponent, suddenly slid gracefully forward on his face. He lay there while the referee counted him out. He then sprang lightly to his feet and stepped jauntily to his corner.

His action threw the crowd into an uproar. Spectators stood on their chairs, booing and hissing. Others threw their hats, cushions and programs into the ring. Police had their hands full quieting the crowd.

Immediately after Sayers was counted out, Chairman Weiner, of the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission, jumped through the ropes and announced the Detroit battler's portion of the purse would be forfeited.

HOPPE, "GREENIE" LEADING RIVALS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Ralph Greenleaf and Willie Hoppe went into the second day's play of their respective billiard matches today with substantial leads. Greenleaf defeated James Maturio in the first two blocks of their handicap pocket billiard match, the score standing 304 to 97 at the beginning of today's play. Greenleaf's high run of the first day's play was 46 against Maturio's 81. Hoppe entered today's play with a lead of 120 to 103 over Otto Reisel in their three cushion match. Hoppe was playing his old time daring form.

RESERVES TO PLAY MIDLAND GRIDDERS

High School Second Stringers Book Special Tilt For Thursday; Springer's Salem Outfit Here Saturday.

With a Boosters' Day campaign, a High Reserves-Midland High contest and the Varsity Salem county championship battle all scheduled for this week, Blue and White athletes and students will manage to keep busy for the next five days.

Coach Joe Hurst today announced the completion of negotiations for special game between the Blue and White Reserves and the Midland high school team here on Thursday afternoon at 3:15 p. m.

The second string performers have not had so many opportunities this year to break into action, with the exception of the East Palestine game, and the Thursday battle with the Pennsylvanians is designed to give them a chance to show their stuff.

On Saturday afternoon Salem appears here in the final home game of importance, unless Leetonia, booked the following Saturday, shows more strength than it has until the present date.

Salem, losing four straight, came to life Saturday and defeated a somewhat crippled Wellsville team, by a score of 18 to 6, and their faltering spirits pepped up to a considerable extent by the victory will be here Saturday for the scalp of the Potters.

Skin Itched And Burned Terribly Cuticura Healed

"My mother's hands began to itch and in a short time became covered with large, sore eruptions. Her skin was dry and itched and burned terribly so that she could not help scratching. She could not put her hands in water or do her work, and at night she could not rest on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted a year and six months.

"We sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which helped her. She purchased more, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was healed."

(Signed) Miss Fleta Lee, R. S. Box 47, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

Use Cuticura Soap daily for the toilet, assisted by Cuticura Ointment when required, and have a clear, fresh complexion, free from pimples and blackheads.

Small size, Ointment 25¢ and Soap 15¢. Sold everywhere. Sample sent free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass.

The 1928 production of synthetic petroleum will be 100,000 tons in Germany, which, however, is increasing its consumption of fuel oil at the rate of 300,000 tons a year, the chief source of supply being the United States.

In a recent week railways of Great Britain carried more than 40,000,000 passengers without a single accident.

The number of American automobiles shown at the recent Paris salon was second only to that of French makes.
